Bullying: The Silent Threat “Restoring Peace . . . One Child At a Time”

- Bullying is a significant social issue affecting our children's quality-of-life.
- Expand your knowledge to enable early detection of the warning signs indicating those who bully and who are risk of being bullied and learn how to make a change.
- To examine personal biases, student sensitivity, and how a negative school climate increases bullying-related issues such as cyber bullying and sexting.
- Lastly to explore intervention and prevention strategies as related to bullying and school climate, school busses and playing fields and online.

How Bullying Affects Children With Special Needs: “I Just Want A Friend”

- Discuss the Predictors for Bullying,
- Types of bullying associated with Children with Special Needs,
- Student Centered Approach to Bullying and understanding the child's IEP/504 plan around bullying related issues.

Teen Dating Violence

Approximately one in three teens have experienced verbal, physical or sexual abuse in their dating relationships, nearly one in four have been abused through technology, and nearly one in two said they had been controlled, threatened, or pressured to do something they did not want to do. Teens involved in abusive relationships often feel trapped and powerless, and it is common for abusers to threaten the victim into compliance. This workshop will explore how normal adolescent development impacts teen relationships. The dynamics of teen dating violence, including red flags, victim and perpetrator risk factors, and protective factors will be examined. Participants will increase their knowledge base and ability to effectively support victims of teen dating violence and/or human trafficking. Interventions that can help teens get safe, stay safe, and have healthy relationships as well as resources for teens will be provided.

Cyberbullying and Sexting for Educators/Investigators
